Victoria Novak is the Executive Director of Greenville Literacy Association (GLA), where she leads innovative efforts to expand adult education and literacy across Greenville County. Passionate about empowerment and building confidence, she is dedicated to creating opportunities that uplift individuals and strengthen communities.

A proud graduate of Leadership Greenville Legacy Class 50, Victoria also shares her love of reading as a Rotary Club of Greenville member and volunteer at Alexander Elementary. Her career spans workforce development, business and cross-sector partnerships, and education. She has designed training programs with industry partners to close skills gaps and prepare individuals for high-demand careers, and previously held leadership roles at Spartanburg Methodist College and Metropolitan Community College, focusing on technology, workforce innovation, and community collaboration.

Victoria holds a bachelor's in multidisciplinary studies and a master's in public administration from the University of Nebraska at Omaha and is pursuing a doctorate in education. A certified online instructor and leadership facilitator, she serves on the United Way of Greenville County Community Impact Council, Greenville County Workforce Development Board, and Blue Ridge Institute. She and her husband, Troy, enjoy country living with their AussieDoodles, chickens, and visits with their three grown children.
